Dear Children:-Four months up with the lark and make the woods ring with the whistle and you have had some slight attacks of the "spring fever" already, have you not?

What Some of Them Are Loing and Saying.

Next to Olive Schreiner, Cecil interesting woman in South Africa today. Her eccentricities are numer-ous, and she is as famed for her dis-like of men as her brother for his of women. She is so decidedly of the masculine type as at once to attract attention. In complexion and manner she closely resembles the English RITTENDEN CHAPTER, NO. 70,

M., meets regularly Saturday about her except her deference to the social conventionalities in always having a woman companion in close attendance upon her, while her impulsive generosity wins her many friends. On board a steamer going down to Cape Town, recently, she regulated the handicap for the running matches, umpired the chicken fights and was particularly active in inciting to extraordinary efforts the contestants in a tug-of-war. Her home, Groot Schur, is a beautiful country place near Cape Town, and she has made a zoological collection that includes almost every wild animal native to South Africa She has a better understanding of the politics and statecraft of South Africa than many a member of the British colonial office. Of course, her views are the exact opposite of Olive Schriener, the Boer champion.

Woman's work has widened and exended so wonderfully in the last few years that it seems as if every sphere and phase must be exhausted. So it is that one feels like congratulating the woman who has hung out her sign as an "advertisement construcsign." She is a rhymester by nature, and she sits at her desk all day long building advertisements for the butcher, the baker and the candle-stick maker. She can build as airily and as flippantly as her clients want.

That intellect expands early in the great west is shown by Miss Belle Plemming, of Pauls Valley, Ind. T., who is only 17 years old and yet has been admitted to practice law at the bar of the United States Court of the northern district of the territory. Miss Flemming has been amusing herself with Blackstone and Kent since she was 11 years old. ,

Miss Melesin K. Sowles who is only sixteen years old, is probably the youngest woman preacher in the world. Since last June she has been preaching in the Baptist Church, Honey Creek, Wis. Before she was ten years old she developed a great in-terest in theology. She speaks with great simplicity and earnestness.

Thrown upon her own resources some time ago, Mrs. Clara L. Kellog decided to support herself by teaching embroidery. She thoroughly pre-pared herself for this work by a trip to Europe, where she visited museums, cathedrals and convents where were rare pieces of tapestry and embroidery. Sho now has a large business, which employs fifty women and owns property valued at $75,000.

Some years ago Mrs. Emily Talbot, of Boston, originated the idea of an Association of Colegiate Alumnae, which should advance education at methods, encourage girls in more definite aims and teach college-bred women to make their superior training count for more in bettering social conditions. The organization was formed and now numbers 2,000 women from all parts of the country

Glossy Hair.

The use of this shampoo will keep the hair in perfect condition, rendering it soft and glossy:-Shake the yolk of an egx in half a pint of alcohol till thoroughly mixed. Strain, and you will have a clear fluid left, which will keep for an indefinite period. Into each basin of water used for washing the hair put one or two tablespoonfuls of this liquld. Rub well into the scalp and through the hair. Rinse in clean warm water. Rub with a linen towel till partly dry, and then take a large Japanese fan and fan vigorously till perfectly dry, when the hair will be delightfully soft and glossy.

To Renovate Black Gloves.

When one is in the habit of wearing black gloves we notice how very quickly they begin to wear white; and long before there is a tear in the kid they are too shabby to put on. But with a little care this state of affairs will never come to pass. As soon as you begin to notice the least sign of white, rab the parts gently, when the glove is on the hand, with a flannel dipped in clive oil and soot. This not only restores the solor, but the gloss.

HAND BOOK BINDING

WOMEN WHO MAKE A SUCCESS OF IT.

A School in New York Where It Is Taught-The Price of Most Artistic Work-The Princess of Wales Bookbinder.

(New York Letter.)

Ever since the Middle Ages, when patient monks toiled day after day and year after year illuminating with loving art the sacred text, there have been book lovers who valued a book not for its object matter, but for its artistic binding. The majority of Americans accustomed to poor type, poorer paper and poorest binding would think it a great extravagance to pay $100 or more to have a favorite volume rebound in a fashion worthy of the nobe thoughts expressed.

To the inexperienced eye the handmade "tooled" book covers do not look very different from the cheap stamped patterns of the bargain counters. But the book lover cannot be deceived. He holds the volume tenderly and looks for the distinguished mark of this or that master with eager, loving eyes The handsome book covers will never become popular, because it is only the wealthy man or insatiable book collector that would dream of paying hundreds of dollars for a book. But as money is no object to the wealthy book lover, so in many cases money is no object to the men and women who do the binding. They are gov-erned by the same impulse that rules a painter or sculptor, the ideal striving to make itself palpable.

Book-binding offers a congenial oc-cupation for women of original ideas and artistic tastes. It is not a craze suitable for a woman dependent upon her own resources, for the field is necessarily limited and the returns smaller, or, to speak properly, slow.
Until recently it was impossible for a woman to master the art of bookbinding in America. The greater number of women whose work is in demand received their instruction abroad, principally at the famous Dove bindery in London, founded by Cobden-Sandenson. In the ordinary shops women are only allowed to stitch the leaves. But now the Nord-hoff Bindery in New York gives a young woman every opportunity to acquire the secrets of the craft. This school has been established by the friends of the late Evelyn Hunter Nordhoff, a pioneer among women in the art, and whose untimely death prevented her carrying out the plan

Miss Nordhoff was particularly adapted for this line of work. She understood ornamental leather work, she was a good etcher on copper and was not only a clever designer, but a cultured woman, with the breadth of understanding that much travel and diversified associations invariably Bookbinding necessitates close application and considerable outlay. The first cost of learning is great, and the tools and materials employed are very expensive. The beautiful leathers are extravagantly high, and many have to be especially imported for the pur-

In binding a book by hand the first step is to take the leaves in sections and sew them in the back. All are, sewn on a common cord, which forms a hinge for the books to turn on. This is called flexible sewing and is used in other binderies, mostly for bibles, law books, dictionaries and other heavy books that are to be frequently

Then the back is glued. But in the Nordhoff Bindery very little glue is used, the sewing being depended upon for strength in holding the leaves in

The book is now ready for the covers, and the edges are made even and smooth by what are known as the plow and press. The head-bandings, the bits of bright color at the top and bottom of a volume, can be made by embroidery silk, woven in and out with three The lettering is the finishing touch The title may be put on in single-handle letters, which in England is always done, or the type is set up all on one palette and the whole name is put on at once. One woman, Mrs. Henry W. Grimwood, being unable to obtain instruc-tion in the ordinary binderies, studied the whole subject out from J. W Zachnsdorf's "Treatise on Practical Bookbinding." She declared this to be very comprehensible and comprehensive, as it ought to be, since he is one of the masters of the handicraft. Many women in England have tak up bookbinding. The Guild of Woman Binders has sixty members, and included several women whose names have become well known as artists in the bookbinding. The Princess Victoria of Wales is an enthusiastic bookbinder and has done some very creditable work, it is said. She obtained several prizes in an exhibition some time ago, having entered her work under the name of Miss Matthews, as she did not wish her rank to influence the decision of the judg-But after the mechanical details are mastered, the real test remains that must determine whether a woman shall receive recognition in this craft or not. She must be original in her designs and must have the discriminating taste which determines which material, color or embellishment is best suited to the subject treated of in the book. A French novel or a volume of modern verse requires a very different treatment and material than a volume of Shakespeare or a copy of the Bible. The craft demands not only skilled fingers, but artistic sympathy, and a subtile insight into the thoughts of he author who wrote the book.

Perhaps I should more definitely state that the business is not one that offers great reward for the self-supporting young woman. But as showing the widening circle of women's work, it is worth attention. And if work, it is worth attentico. And if the young woman is espacially qualifled for it, artistically, physically, and, of course, practically, she might, after having been learned the trade, turn a few dollars into her pocket by practising it in her own town. For there are lovers of artistic binding and face binding in almost every community.

QUESTION ANSWERED.

Yes, August Flower still has the largest sale of any medicine in the civilized world. Your mothers' and grandmothers' never thought of using anything else for Indigestion or Billiousness. Doctors were scarce and they seldom heard of Appendicitis, Nervous Prostration or Heart failure, etc. They used August Flower to clean out the system and stop fermentation of undigested food, regulate the action of the liver, stimulate the nervous and organic action of the system, and that is all they took Great opportunity offered to when feeling dull and bad with good reliable men. there are thousands of women who nearly suffer death from irregular menses. Sometimes the "period" comes too often — sometimes not often enough—sometimes the flow istoo scant, and again it is too profuse. Each symptom shows that Nature needs help, and that there is trouble in the organs concerned. Be careful when in any of the above conditions. Don't take any and every nostrum advertised to cure female troubles.

BRADFIELD'S FEMALE REGULATOR

LARGE CROWDS

Attended the Commencement Exercises Friday and Saturday Nights.

A Brilliant Affair and the Young People at Their Best.

The commencement exercises of he Marion Graded School are always largely attended, but this year the attendance was larger than usual, many being turned away for the want of seats. The large class of graduates this year, as usual, contained quite a number of the most promising and ambitious girls and boys of the county, and some of the surrounding counties were ably represented.

To mention some without all, would be an injustice, and as the list and programme was printed last week, we can only add that the participants in the programme did credit to the school and community, meeting the highest expectations of teachers and friends. The orations were on timely subjects, full of thought and were delivered with life and power.
